There lived a King who thought he had all the riches of the land, but before he was three days old he had lost all his wealth and was left with nothing but a poor man. He was so poor that he had to sell his own children to buy food for his wife and children. He was so poor that he had to sell his own children to buy food for his wife and children. He was so poor that he had to sell his own children to buy food for his wife and children.
