A FOREST HYMN

I've been to a forest where
the birds are always singing, and the echo in the forest, it too is always singing,
with the silence of the trees,
and the hum of the leaves, It's where I grew up,
on my knees, it's where I praise the creator of all I see,
He gives me strength,
He changes me.

A FOREST HYMN

I've been to a forest where
the birds are always singing, and the color in the forest, it was always changing,
with the silence of the trees,
and the rustle of the leaves.
It's where I go to pray,
on my knees, it's where I praise the creation of all life.
He gives me strength,
He changes me.

I've been to a forest where
the birds are always singing and the cello in the forest, it too is always ringing
with the silence of the trees, and the music of the leaves, It's where I go to pray,
on my knees, it's where I
praise the creator of all I see.
He gives me strength,
He changes me.

It's hard to find a forest where
the birds are always singing, and the wind in the forest, it is always blowing.
I love the silence of the trees,
and the rustle of the leaves.
It's where I go to pray,
on my knees, it's where I
praise the creator of all I see,
He gives me strength,
He changes me.
