In the vastness of the night, the stars of all planets including the sun, all worlds, when they are still, not even one only the very bright star that it is possible to see, and the light of the stars and planets is small and dim. In the vastness of space, there is only one bright star and it is our sun. It is the only star that is so close to us that we can see it with our eyes. It is the only star that is so close to us that we can feel its heat and light.
