The middle portion of a saree is very wide and floppy but it gradually tapers down around the ankle. Another variation of saree is the Ghungru style which is a saree that has a tight top part, but with the flares ending in various small folds around the ankle. Usually, this saree is a powder or light green color. These sarees are worn by the Saree or Charkha Karmies as a symbol of solidarity.

Designer Salwar Kameez or Churidar look smart for casual than for gatherings or even for a wedding ceremony. The Salwar is a breezy pair of type of trousers, which has wide at the top and narrow at the bottom. The Kurta is a long top or tunic, which often reaches up to the knees. The length of the Salwar can vary depending on the formal function in style. The Salwar is held over the ankle with pleats at the waist and held up by a waistband or a drawstring.
